Best day of your life: Try to make everyday the best (Jennifer). The day my daughter Angela was born; she is the second child and I was much nore relaxed knowing what was in store when I got home. I know they say babies can't smile for weeks, but I can tell you that is not true. She looked right into my eyes and smiled when she was about 1-minute old (Chrissie).

Best vacation: Lake Tahoe/ Heavenly Valley skiing with family. (Jennifer). A road trip last fall with my husband in Maine. We drove to the upper west part of the state and stayed in a quaint log cabin, just the 2 of us for a couple of days. Then we drove through the North Maine Woods that took all day. Our kids met us on the other side of woods and we spent the weekend in Millinocket before heading home. (Chrissie)

Friday, February 10, 2017

Boston born and bred, Mulvehill grew up in Westwood and graduated B.C. High School in 1948. He became a theology professor and, later, president of Cardinal Cushing College in Brookline, operated by the Sisters of the Holy *Cross.The college closed in 1972 and Mulvehill went on to become the director of religious education for the Archdiocese. He was then assigned to St. Francis Xavier Parish in Weymouth in 1983. It was 1995 when the Cardinal asked Mulvehill to do him a favor and come to Cohasset. "It was the best favor he could have asked of me," said the Father. "I've been blessed. The people are wonderful, very supportive, very responsive to anything we ask of them." During his 22 years in Cohasset, Mulvehill has been a steady presence as and weddings has grown, the youth population has increased, the leadership "structure has evolved, "and the food pantry has relocated to the rectory from its former location at "Second Congregational. The church added a new parish center in that time, giving the congregation an opportunity to meet in large numbers outside of Masses and to offer hospitality after funerals. This has enabled the growth of social events like the St. Patrick's celebration, some of which used to be held at Kimball's for lack of a better location, and has brought congregants closer together. More recently, St. Anthony's adopted a number of former members of the Scituate parish St. Francis Cabrini, which closed its doors once and for all after a 12-year vigil following the archdiocese's decision to shutter the church. But not all growth has been good, said Mulvehill, citing growing concerns over the use and availabilcommunities. "That was not even heard of in my

Indeed, the church is faced with a different world today, and the world has a different attitude toward the church than it did 60 years ago. But the overall shift has been for the better, according to

"There have been great changes in the liturgy since the Vatican Council," he said. "Before, the priest always celebrated Mass with his back to the people; now he faces the people. And the people are more involved in the responses and singing. It's had a tremendous impact. People are more involved in the liturgy and feel more a part of the ceremonies." "When I was first ordained," Mulvehill went on, "the Bible was considered a Protestant thing. Now there's great interest in Scripture readings."

Formerly, said Mulvehill, the emphasis was on tradition and reasoning. People knew the words to the Latin Masses but didn't know what they meant. The change "has opened people's eyes to the wealth and beauty of the Scriptures," Mulvehill said.

The liturgy now incorporates a wider variety of Scriptures, introducing even lifelong Catholics to new passages they've never heard before.

takes a similar angle, with a conversational approach to the problems of the day and the situations young people face in the modern world. Students also participate in an annual service trip to Kentucky, working together to raise their own funds throughout the year. Meanwhile, adults in the church serve at the Food Pantry, the Pine Street Inn in Boston, or by knitting shawls and hats for cancer patients at South Shore Hospital. Mulvehill doesn't take credit for any of his parish's growth or success. In the Catholic Church, changes like these come down from the top and are implemented by churches across the board; their success is by the grace of God. However, it's clear that just bearing witness to it all has been a great source of joy to the Father. "There have been challenging days and difficult days," he allows, "but never an unhappy one." Mulvehill said he has no plans to retire anytime soon. "As long as the Good Lord lets me go, I'll go," he

As I was writing the column Wednesday coming off of that little high (ok big high) only to be hearing ups and downs of this storm that's coming and just got back from the grocery store to do what I thought would be a quick, "in and out" stop before I began. WRONG!

I totally didn't prepare for the insanity that happens with the "S" word coming into play (get your mind out of the gutter please, SNOW) and the place was comically crazy! I was going to let my little guy that I watch help me push the cart however, when he became pinned between two feisty, frustrated and extremely determined dads and the carriages they were aiming towards each other directions with neither one letting the

The South Shore Art Center knows how to put on a party. Besides being in a lovely place, where you're surrounded by art, able to enjoy good food, drink and pleasant people, there's usually a sense of eager anticipation.

On Feb. 15 that sense of anticipation will be greater than ever, when the doors open at 7 p.m., at 119 Ripley Road, in Cohasset. Guests will enter the main gallery, ready to play a game that's "something like Bingo," say the two women who will have organized "Art Off the Wall," a fundraising gala, where participants will wind up with a piece of art that they have bought blindly, but with the confidence that they will be pleased.

Love trumps revenge

By Glenn Mangurian

uch is being written about V ⊥ the remarkable Super Bowl win for the Patriots. Some are asserting it was the greatest moment in Boston sports history. Hingham's own Kevin Cullen provided a thoughtful essay in his Tuesday Boston Globe column, "The real Super Bowl lesson wasn't about revenge."

Many in Patriot's Nation believe that the come from behind overtime victory was sweet revenge for the unfair "Deflate-gate" saga. Yes, revenge was in the Houston stadium Sunday night but he left mid-way into the third quarter attempting to beat the traffic to the airport. Revenge is a very human response to feeling slighted. It is usually seen as a way to punish someone who misbehaved. In the Patriots' case revenge is our attempt to right an outrageous wrong by NFL commissioner, Roger Goodell. While revenge may allow us to feel good, that feeling does nothing to change the past. Researchers on the effects of revenge have found - "Rather than providing closure, it does the opposite: It keeps the wound open and fresh."

Cullen has a different view that resonates with me. He said, "Everything our parents, our teachers, our coaches had tried to teach us transpired in the last 18 minutes of this magnificent spectacle, this Super Bowl. In the end, it wasn't about revenge. It was about not giving up, about perseverance.

But the more important lesson was about the power of love. Love also attended the Super Bowl. Love was seated in the Brady family box. Tom Brady's mom, Galynn, has been undergoing chemotherapy and radiation treatments for the past 18 months. She was unable to attend any games in the 2016 season. Yet she mustered enough strength to see her son play in the Super Bowl. She didn't attend for revenge. Rather she attended for love - a love that did not depend on the final score. Love is a powerful force. It summons the best in us, provides hope and provides courage to overcome seemingly insurmountable obstacles. For those of us that are spiritual, maybe the Patriots were assisted by a team of angels. How else can we explain the unbelievable plays of the fourth quarter? Julian Edelman might not have caught the ball without > divine intervention. So as the duck boats go back to their regular duties and the players go to wherever they go in the off season, let's remember what the Latin poet Virgil et nos cedamus amori" -"Love conquers all, let us all yield to love" That is the teachable message for our children.

2017 Polar Plunge for Special Olympics!

By Taffy Nothnagle Special to the Mariner arch Madness starts early, on Saturday, March 4th this year! It's the 19h Polar Plunge for Special Olympics Massachusetts (SOMA). If you're looking for a "bucket-list" event to actually take part in, or to go watch and cheer for the Plungers, this is it! There's a costume parade at 11:15 a.m., followed by the mad dash of the 750+ brave people into the cold surf at here in Massachusetts in 12 noon at the Mary Jean- 1994, providing free screennette Murray Bathhouse on Nantasket Beach! (They'll be out, drying off, by 12:02!) The Polar Plunge has become such a success that this winter SOMA is sponsoring Plunges in eight different locations through February and March. The one at Nantasket remains the BIG ONE, raising $355,000 in 2016. Unlike most organizations, we don't charge our athletes or their families to participate, so these funds are vitally important in providing year-round training and 130 competitions in 24 sports for our 13,000 athletes statewide. Our athletes range in age from two (Young Athletes Program) to 104 (yes, our centenarian still

In addition to sports training & competition, these donations support Special Olympics International's worldwide "Healthy Athletes" Program," founded ing in medical and dental issues for our 4.3 million athletes. Of the hundreds of athletes screened in 2016, many were referred for treatment. ## Fifth-graders earn highest rank in Cub Scouts n Saturday, Feb. 11th, 13 5th Grade Cubs Scouts will be earning their Arrow Of Light award. This is the highest rank a Cub Scout will earn. The Arrow of Light prepares a Webelo Cub Scout to become a Boy Scout. This is the only Cub Scout badge that can be worn on the Boy Scout uniform when he graduates into a Boy Scout Troop. State Rep. Joan Meschino and state Sen. Patrick O'Connor, or a representative from their office, will present this prestigious award to these fine young men. The following boys will earn this award: Gavin Schmidt, Drew Olson, Josh Young, Charlie Farrag, Eric Hense, Ali Omran, Jackson French, Harrison Babushka, Alexander Hanke, Nick Hoadley, Marcus Inferrera, Luc LeFevre, and Dimitri Peters. These boys have worked hard to earn this award. Like other boys, they have homework, participate in sports, play musical instruments and have family and religious commitments. However, these 13 boys have added Cub Scouts to their list of accomplishments. All skills they have earned while in Cub Scouts will build these young men into amazing Boy

dents realized that almost all the power generated was to be sold elsewhere, and that because of tax breaks the town would not be receiving any revenues from the project. The feel good aura of the project soon turned into the realization that we were on the verge of being snookered. Thankfully the project was defeated at the last moment, but it's similarities with what's happening in Hingham are striking.

Let's make it perfectly clear, Worlds End may be in Hingham, but for decades it's been a gift to all the surrounding communities and we all are about to kiss goodbye the open accessibility that's been enjoyed for years.

Perhaps some in Hing-natural setting with good parking and a visitor's center, well if that's the case, they are in luck because they already have one. Wompatuck State Park is spectacular; it has a very nice visitor's center and ample parking. Addi tionally, it's all situated so that it's not impeding on the local residents. The beauty of the untouched waterfront in Worlds End should be left alone. In my humble estimation Hingham has much to gain by focusing efforts to beautify and expand the accessibility of the area from the bathing beach to the War Memorial Statue along Rt. 3A rather than disturbing what wasn't meant to be disturbed.

family donated the land that is Worlds End, they intended it to be used the way it's being used today. Recently the family publicly stated that the development plans is in stark contrast to what they desired when they donated the land rather than selling it. I'm sure the Brewers could have made a pretty penny selling the land to developers, but they refused Unfortunately, Hingham leaders weren't so thoughtful.

Wait, on second thought, now that I think of it perhaps allowing expansion on to Worlds End isn't such a bad idea. I've been feeling nostalgic for Paragon Park recently, and I'm sure the view of Crows Point and the Hingham Yacht Club would be amazing from the top of a roller coaster or Ferris wheel. Don't scoff, once Pandora's Box is opened, the possibilities are endless. Want to walk your dog on Worlds end some weekend in June; sorry you can't because the Smith / Johnson wedding party is being followed up by the Acme

Corporate outing. The decision to allow initial development on Worlds End is a decision that impacts the entire area, not just the residents of Hingham. So unless Hingham leaders find a way to correct a wrong, they've just stuck it to all of us. Because of that, Hingham loses the third installment of Cohasset vs. Hingham and in the process we all

House 37-122, Senate 6-33, rejected a joint rule requiring the House and Senate o annually adopt by March 15 resolutions stating the minimum amount of local d that the Legislature will give to cities and towns for that year. Supporters said most communities craft their local budgets in March and can

CONFLICIS BETWEEN HOUSE SESSIONS AND COMMITTEE HEAR-

House 37-120 rejected a proposed rule to reduce the scheduling conflicts between formal House sessions and committee hearings. Formal sessions are ones at which important legislation is often considered by the full House and sometimes Current rules prohibit committee hearings "insofar as practical" from being scheduled at the same time as formal sessions of the House. The proposed rule would prohibit committee hearings from being scheduled at the same time as formal sessions unless there is an emergency and the chair of the committee submits to the House a written description of the emergency.

should not have to choose between attending an important committee hearing and a key meeting of the full House. Opponents said committee hearings are scheduled well in advance in order to give citizens adequate notice to arrange their schedules to be there. They noted that if this proposed rule is implemented, the House will inconvenience the public when it reschedules a committee hearing to another day. They argued that current rules already allow some flexibility and have been working well.

EQUAL REPRESENTATION ON ETHICS COMMITTEE (H 2017) House 35-123, rejected a rule that would change the current 11-member Ethics Committee to an eight-member one that would include four Democrats and four Republicans. Current rules provide for seven Democrats and only four Republicans on the 11-member committee.

Supporters said a balanced membership, regardless of which party controls the House, would create a truly bipartisan committee and ensure that investigations into any representative's or state worker's conduct are fair and nonpartisan. They noted that the U.S. Congress' Ethics Committee has an equal number of members from both parties.

Opponents said no one has challenged the fairness or integrity of the current Ethics Committee with its Democratic majority. They noted it is illogical to have an equal number of members from each party on the committee when the current makeup of the House membership is 125 Democrats and 35 Republicans. House 37-122, rejected a rule requiring a two-thirds vote to ship proposed amendments off to a study committee unless the sponsor of the original amendment agrees with conducting a study.

The rule was designed to stop what Republicans describe as successful attempts. by Speaker DeLeo and his Democratic leadership team to prevent Democratic members from having to vote directly against many GOP proposals including ones Here's an example of how the GOP says it works: The Republicans offer a proposal to reduce the income tax from 5.1 percent back to 5 percent. If the Democratic leadership does nothing, there would be a roll call vote directly on the tax reduction. Most Democrats would vote against the reduction and then would be open to charges of being against tax relief.

Instead, a Democratic member offers a "delaying" amendment that would prohibit the tax reduction from taking effect until the Department of Revenue studies its economic impact.
Under House rules, the amendment to study and delay the tax cut is voted upon first. If it passes, which it always does, no other amendments can be introduced and the original proposal that would simply cut the tax is dead without ever having a direct vote on it. Republicans say the studies are a sham because they are never

They say this is all pre-planned by the Democratic leadership when the presiding officer at the podium calls upon a Democratic representative who is loyal to him and the member proposes the delay and study. Even if a Republican member s waving his or her hand and shouting to be recognized, he or she will likely not be called upon because he or she would not propose the delay and study.

Some Democrats say the study is often a legitimate option to examine the im pact of the tax reduction. Other Democrats acknowledge that the study is proposed to prevent a direct vote on the tax reduction. Supporters of the proposed rule said this Democratic ploy is used to confuse the voters. They argued that the new rule would at least give supporters of tax reduc tion amendments a better opportunity to successfully force a vote directly on the

Opponents of the proposed rule said the current system has worked fine and aropponents of the proposed rule said the current system has worked fine and argued that requiring a two-thirds majority for further amendments was simply another procedural delaying tactic by the minority party. ## Special art exhibit at Historical Society

By Amanda C. Thompson athompson@wickedlocal.com

In a town full of art, sometimes it's hard to know where to look. The Historical Society has a special exhibit on display through the end of February and invites all lovers of art, history, and the Town Cohasset to come have a look around.

The exhibit features pieces purchased or donated to the Society since they moved into the historic Pratt Building in 2003, a total of about 30 works of art large and small.

One whole collection seems to have served as a study for the mural downstairs in the Pratt Building. Others depict the town's iconic churches, village, and common.

Each piece tells not only the story on the canvas, but the story of the artist who created it. Many lived in Cohasset while others simply came here to work on their art, inspired by the beautiful scenery. about how some of these can probably relate! their inspiration! One artist, information about a water-and last week's ranking in parenthesis.

Boys

Braintree (9-5, 4) -■ There is not a hotter team in the state right now than Braintree. The Wamps handed Needham its first Joss of the season on Friday to clinch a tournament spot. Since a 3-3 start, Braintree has rattled off six consecutive wins in the difficult Bay State Conference. The Wamps are a strong sleeper pick in the Division 1 South Sectionals.

Norwell (11-2, 3) -■ The Clippers picked up a nice win over Cohasset last week. The month of February is filled with tough teams for the Clippers. Norwell is in contention for the top seed in Division 3 South. If the Clippers win out, they'll be more than deserving of the top spot.

n Rockland (10-5, 2) ■ The Bulldogs had a light week last week with just a win over Middleboro. There's a lot of similarities between the seasons that Braintree and Rockland are having. Both teams are likely to have lower seeds in the tournament, but both have just as good a shot as

The ticks that spread Lyme disease are most active during fall and winter, according to the Companion Animal Parasite Council.

Ticks thrive virtually everywhere in the country, with different species preferring different locales. While ticks are commonly found in heavily wooded areas, they also thrive in domestic settings such as gardens, landscape plantings and backyard grasses. Experts estimate that the majority of people who contract tick-borne diseases came in contact with the tick that made them ill right in their own backyards.

"It's not just deer that carry the ticks that spread Lyme disease. Other small rodents like mice can carry it, too, Leland said.

Your highest risk of encountering a tick would be by sitting on a downed log, leaning against a tree trunk or gathering firewood, she added. According to LymeDisease.org, here are some ways to reduce the ticks on your prop-· Prune trees.

· Clear brush.

 Move shrubbery and overgrowth farther from areas frequented by people. To make your property unattractive to animals that are hosts to ticks: · Eliminate bird feeders, birdbaths and salt licks. · Erect fencing around the · Clear away woodpiles, garbage and leaf piles. · Remove stone walls that provide homes to wildlife. · Have your property chemically treated.

When outdoors, dress defensively with shoes, socks, long pants and sleeves, Leland

"Clothing that is pretreated with the repellent permethrin can be bought at outdoors stores and lasts through about 70 washings. Or, you can buy permethrin spray and treat clothes yourself," Leland said. Repellents that include DEET are recommended by the CDC, but more natural op-

 This week's pick of the litter features one handsome fellow named Hunter. He was a stray who came to Hull Seaside Animal Rescue a few week's ago from a triple-decker in Dorchester. He was allowed by residents to roam and hang out in the stairwell so he would at least be out of the cold. This boy is not an ordinary tiger cat. He is what is known as a "Ticked Tiger."

He does not have stripes all over, but rather on his legs, neck and tail. Each individual hair on his body has stripes, which give him an exotic, almost Abyssinian appearance. His green eyes and graceful build

Here's How It Works:

Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
